NASAL CATARRH

AND ITS EFFECT UPON

THE SYSTEM.

Catarrh consists of inflammation beginning behind and a little above the veil of the palato, and extending upward into the nose and air cavities of the face. It creates a perpetual desire to swallow, and causes a feeling as if something was sticking in the upper and back part of the throat. As the disease becomes chronic, the matter concretes into hardened lumps, the matter secreted becomes puriform, the breath is offensive, and the voice assumes a nasal twang, while, on rising in the morning, great effort is required to c'ear the head and throat. There is often a feeling of pressure across the lower part of the forchead, causing headache, dizziness, and confusion of thought and loss of memory.

part of the forehead, causing headache, dizziness, and confusion of thought and loss of memory.

The sense of smell becomes impaired, the eyes are weak, and, as the inflammation extends up the custaceian tubes into the internal ear there is partial deafness with throbbling, humming or ringing noises in the ear.
In sleep the Catarrial matter is unconsciously swallowed, which, in time, deranges the Momania and impairs digestion, causing dyspepsia and a multiplicity of disoordant symptoms, which are often mistaken for other diseases. To the foregoing, add the fact that every breath of air drawn into the lungs is drawn over the diseased surface, festering with Catarrhal matter, and who can deny the assertion that to neglect Catarrh is to invite Consumption.

Consumption is the one prevailing disease, at the present day, with which the young and middle-aged die. And yet very seldom do the lungs receive the primary shock. It is first "a cold in the head," which resolves into Chronic Catarrh, from which the surect feels no alarm, until, step by step, it reaches the lungs, when all attempts at cure are littie better than blind experiments.

With every incentive to enjoyment and usefulness, there are hundreds all around us dying in the morning of life, of Consumption, who can took back six months, a year, or longer, as the case may be, to a time when it was "but caturrh." Neglected at a time when (properly treated) a cure was possible, silently and almost imperceptibly it has transformed the bright, raddy features of youth into the duil, wan listlessness of premature age, as it has drunk up the vitality from the blood and fulleds of the wasted frame, and now, when hope is dead, and the life forces one by one are ebbing away, the might have been," and tremblingly forward to what soon must be,

CONSEQUENCES OF NEGLECT.

Those who indorse the stupid assertion

CONSEQUENCES OF NEGLECT. Those who indorse the stupid assertion that "Catarrh will get well of itself," or is curable by snuffing or inhaling the nostrums in common use, will do well to remember that the local disease depends always upon a fermentative condition of the bloot. Medical writers are wont to speak of Catarrh as a simple local inflammation, and tarrh as a simple local inflammation, and both its importance and rational treatment are either wholly ignored, or receive but a passing notice from the general practitioner; are either wholly ignored, or receive but a passing notice from the general practitioner; and thus Catarrh as surely predisposes to Consumption as does the day precede the night, and is in fact the prelude to that disease is everywhere provalent; people resort to such means as always fall, then give heed to the popular fallacy that it is incurable, and settle into a sort of mental apathy, encouraged by the belief that the family physician knows all that is known on the subject, and thus matters stand, while the disease progresses until hope is dead, and life becomes a mockery, when comes the stereotyped and hackneyed advice of "a visit to the country," "a change of climate," "a sea voyage," "a return of health in the spring," etc.; but, alss! the country referred to is that which lies beyond the confines of the festering grave, and the spring is that season which blooms eternal when life's fitful fever is over.

Let those who donbt this portrayal of Catarrh question the poor consumptive, whose sun of life is going down at noon, or watch its progress upon those who neglect its timely and judicious treatment. A little while and we miss their coming; youth and health have faded from lips and cheek, the light from the eye has gone out, the hands are foldedly peaceably over the still heart—they are gone.

Harrowing Experiences...Horace Greeley. Washington Correspondence Cincinnati Com-mercial.

Instigated by the devil, and persuaded by two angelic faces, I went to this most beastly exhibition of all that disfigured the inauguration of General Grant. Into the narrow corridors and small rooms of the Treasury was pack-ed to suffocation, a crowd of men and women, pushing, struggling, fainting, and almost fighting. Over two thous-and tickets had been sold, and each ticket averaged three people. There were men in swallow-tailed coats, white chokers and tight breeches, and women in all sorts of costumes, of which the bare neck and arms with immense trails predominated, We climbed four flights of stairs, to the ladies' dressing rooms and gentle-men's cloak-rooms. We gave—unsus-pecting mortals as we were—our coats and hats to the reconstructed, receiving a piece of pasteboard, with a number on it, in exchange. A dark suspicion crept over my prophetic soul that I had parted with my tile and coat forever. Sandwiched between two lovely females, I began the descent. A stream of humanity was rushing up the winding stair—a stream of humanity was pouring down; and, by the watch, it took me one hour to reach the last step at the bottom. Here we fell into a tide setting heavily westward, a good deal agitated by a stream of stout policemen, cotton-gloved colored waiters, and some feebleminded young men, with hair parted in the middle, that made a pretty strong current setting to the east. For half an hour I and my convoy whirled In an eddy, caused by a projection at a corner. Escaping from this we fell into midstream, and made steady, but slow

I suppose that by morning we might have leached the end of the corridor, had we not encountered a cross sea, made up of the Diplomatic Corps and some military pumps, that carried us nto a reception room where the President and family stood firm. Against dent and family stood firm. Against these we were dashed with great violence, made more fearful by a stout man who bawled out, "Don't shake hands, don't shake hands," as President and Vice President kept violating this order. I could not understand the meaning of it, unless the man was the sent the right and fored was or Gen

Grant, would catch the itch.
This was varied by weak females in tight dresses, fainting at intervals of five minutes. And the character of the five minutes. And the character of the officials may be gathered from a conversation I heard between the husband of a lady ill from the heat and fatigue, and a functionary. He had carried her out, and fortunately found a vacant space in a hall, where there was a little fresh air, and while he held her up, some servants passed with chairs.

He made an earnest appeal for one of them, but the stupid fellows refused. At last he seized one, and was about seating his wife, when an official came at him, demanding the chair. poor man explained, but the fellow re-plied he had his orders—the chairs were needed for another purpose. the husband, "and if you give me your

"As a remedy for kidney complaints the White Pine Compound stands curivaled. It was not originated for that purpose, but a person in using it for a cough was not only cured of the cough, but was also cured of a kidney difficulty of ten years standing. Since that accidental discovery many thousands have used it for the same complaint, and have been completely cured."

The above was written by Dr. Poland, in 1860. Since then, as in Manchester, the White Compound has taken the load of all Cough remedies, as well as a preparation for the care of Kidney difficulties, in every city, town, vilage and hamlet throughout the New England States.

The remedy is as safe and pleasant to take as it is effectual.

He had seen in the papers that the legislature of Georgia was, to-day, going to vote on the 15th amendment, and inquired how they would dispose of it. Mr. Blodgett replied that they would pass it. The Democats in the legislature had informed him this would be the case. Congress having inflicted negro suffrage on them thay were now going to try to inflict it.

WASHINGTON, March 10. To the President: When you did me the honor to confer upon me the appointment of Secretary of State, I felt constrained to state to you that my health would prevent me from holding the position for any very considerable length of time. I am al-ready admonished that a proper dis-charge of the duties of the office would involve more labor and responsibilities than I am willing to un-dertake in justice to the public interest and myself. If convenient and agree-able to you I would be glad to have you name my successor at as early a moment as you deem practicable, and you will please consider this as my resignation, to take effect as soon as my successor is qualified and ready to enter on the discharge of the duties of the office.
